IS NAMED AS FOUNDER

Miss Anthony Honored by Congress of Women.

DEBATE RACE SUICIDE

WOMEN TAKE ISSUE WITH PRESI-DENT ROOSEVELT.

Proceedings of the National Organization-Addresses Yesterday Afternoon and Last Night.

Miss Susan B. Anthony has been officially designated "founder" of the International and National Council of Women. That action was taken at the session of the triennial council this morning. In a story printed in The Star of last Sunday Miss Anthony was given full credit for the work she had done in this, her last great labor of love for the cause of women, and she was then referred to as the "founder." This morning, in accordance with the suggestion in The Star, Mrs. Mary Wood Swift, president of the National Council of Women, stated that she desired to have the honor of presenting to the council the name of Miss Susan B. Anthony, and that she might be officially indorsed as the founder, and it was done without a dissenting vote, though not without discussion.

Mrs. Elizabeth Grannis of New York objected, as she said that there were three or four women, one in particular, who stood closer to the women of the whole world than any other woman who had ever

"Well, I'd like to know her name," demanded Mrs. Swift.

Mrs. Grannis did not give the name, but proceeded to pronounce a eulogy on the un-named woman, and again cries of "Who is she?" came to the ears of Mrs. Grannis. She still did not name the lady, saying that she stood so high that her name was a household word, and did not have to be mentioned, and she sat down without mentioning it.

Then Mrs. May Wright Sewall took the floor. She apparently favored Miss Anthony for founder in the start, but got away from that a little later and declared that it was in her own library when she and Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery were working together for the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the National Woman's Suffrage Association that the idea of the organization of a national council was first mentioned.
Although Mrs. Grannis did not name the woman she referred to, it was stated by a member of the council that Elizabeth Cady

Stanton was the "founder" Mrs. Grannis

Discussion of Race Suicide.

To look at the delegates of the national council of women, and officers as well, one would not guess that the question of race suicide would trouble them much. But the ideas of President Roosevelt on this subject got a slap yesterday from the national council of women, in triennial council assembled, which, it is conceded, sent the suggestion 'back to the ropes" in a "groggy" condi-Indeed the idea was hammered so hard, first from one side of the hall and then the other, that the impression seems council of women would say emphatically to the President of the United States.

"Quality, not quantity, sir." That is what Rev. Anna Howard Shaw said, that is what Susan B. Anthony saidboth maiden ladies of certain age. But it is said there are several "grown-ups" who are doing things in the world who were reared by these two ladies, and reared well; that in the large interests of the world, the pressing desire to do something for the women of the world, these two eminent reformers have put aside the "home" hopes for themselves to help other less fortunate women all over the world to make their homes happier.

But they were not the only women who tackled the race-suicide idea yesterday. There were some vigorous thinkers and talkers there who combatted the President's idea, and they had beside them daughters who showed the "quality," and, copying the mothers, had the "quantity," too, in physical and mental characteristics.

Stand for "Quality."

The national president, Mrs. Mary Wood Swift, negatives the proposition. So does Mrs. May Wright Sewall, past president of the international council of women, and Mrs. Flo Jamison Miller, the past national president of the Woman's Relief Corps, said to be the largest organization of pa-

"We stand for quality in the Woman's Relief Corps," she declared. "Our organization is founded on the true principles of patriotism which sent the sons of the heroic mothers of the land to battle for those principles and to maintain a united country. Do you suppose for a minute that the men who fought in that awful struggle could have kept it up for four long years if the strength of the mothers who bore them had been sapped with bringing into the world a dozen incompetents, instead of her two or three splendid boys, endowed with health and strength, mentally and physically? Oh, no. I think that a good part of the crime of the world may be traced to weak motherhood, that motherhood which must scatter its never great forces over the bearing of half a dozen children—children who grow up without proper care and restraint, to become charges upon city, county and state. If the mother had given life to but two or three children her own life forces might have gathered strength, rather than discouragement, and she could have done her duty by the smaller family." Another delegate, who does not like to be quoted by name, declared that the President should look to the women of his own social set for race suicide.

"It is the pace set by our society women, particularly in official life," she declared, "which makes race suicide a subject for profound thought. The women of the mlqdle classes, and the women of the 'sub-merged half,' as we call it, do not practice race suicide. Witness the large families of the poor for the truth of my statement. Where race suicide might-nay, I dare even say 'ought'-to be practiced, among the abjectly poor and mentally deficient for proper reproduction of their kind, you will find that it is considered next to murder, this dened, the determined-to-get-rich father and the society-crazy mother who refuse the cares of parenthood. Go into the slums of our great cities and you will find the re-buttal of the presidential idea of race sui-

It is more than probable that resolutions of some kind will be presented to the council before the sessions close, in which the delegates will tell the President, officially, exactly what they think of his suggestions

Constitutional Amendments.

The business of the morning session after making Miss Anthony founder was the adoption of amendments to the constitution. The preamble adopted is as follows: women of the United States, sincerely believing that the best good of our homes and nation will be advanced by our own greater unity of thought, sympathy and purpose, and that an organized move-ment of women will best conserve the highest good of the family and the state, do hereby unite ourselves in a confederation of workers committed to the overthrow of all forms of ignorance and injustice, and to the application of the golden rule to soto the application of the golden rule to society, custom and law.

That we may more successfully prosecute the work, we adopt the following:

The general policy of the society is declared to be that "this council is organized in the interest of no one propaganda, and has no power over the organizations which constitute it, beyond that of suggestion and sympathy; therefore, no organization voting to enter this council shall thereby render itself liable to be interfered with in respect to its complete organization. constitute it, beyond that of suggestion and constitute it, beyond that of suggestion and sympathy; therefore, no organization voting to enter this council shall thereby render itself liable to be interfered with in respect to its complete organic unity, independence or methods of work, or be compendence or methods of work, or be computed to any principle or method of any other organization or to any act or utiles.

The Construction—Orders Issued.

"Europe today, in a time of peace, is spending for the preservation of peace a pile of dollar bills fifty-two miles high," she declared, "and $1,000,000,000 worth of labor every year. Every taxpayer and every human being bears the burden.

"It is perfectly possible to stop this now, other organization or to any act or utiles."

The following orders were issued: That the following appointed to act together.

ance of the council itself, beyond compliance with the terms of this constitution."

A strong effort was made to elect the president for a term of five years and render her ineligible for re-election, an amendment offered by Mrs. Mary Wood Swift. It was discussed with vigor, not to say vehemence, but was finally voted down, as it would necessitate change of triennial sessions to quinquennial sessions, and would so demoralize the arrangement of officers and their terms of office that it seemed to most of the speakers not at all feasible.

Representation to the annual meetings of the executive committee is enlarged, and local councils are given representation and vote in the national body.

Sessions of Yesterday.

The sessions of yesterday afternoon and evening in the triennial meeting of the national council of women were full of interest to the large audiences which gathered to hear the discussion of the questions ered to hear the discussion of the questions presented. The ladies who talk generally disdain "papers." They have ideas and seem to be able to express them without the aid of a scrap of a note, and therein may be the charm in hearing them. The session of last evening was held in the large hall at Pythian Temple and was crowded to the very doors. The room was handsomely decorated with many palms and flags and upon the platform were many distinguished women.

Miss Anthony, as usual, received an ovation as she came forward, and that rapier-like vocabulary of hers got busy right

"It is thirty-five years ago that I first "It is thirty-five years ago that I first began to come once a year to Washington to submit to the national legislators a proposition to enfranchise the women of this republic," she said. "Men have so narrowly construed the Constitution as to make it for men alone. Fifty-five years ago the woman suffragists first met with Mrs. Stanton and Lucretia Mott at Seneca Falls. I think that the resolutions passed at that time were more remarkable than the Declaration of Independence, because they sought to apply its principles to all human beings. All of the rights asked in those resolutions we have gained, except the balresolutions we have gained, except the ballot, which underlies the whole. Before the war we agitated the question in a few states only and in 1869 we came to Washington. The republican party showed that the ballot could only be attained through change of the federal Constitution, and we felt that if the negroes might have the ballot, we should have it also. We shall keep pegging away at it if it takes a hundred years.

"Where there were only a few states, the movement now encompasses the whole United States. Five states have favored it by enactment and ten or twelve have nearby enactment and ten or twelve have nearly done so. Last year we went to Berlin to hold the quinquennial of the national organization, whose greetings I bring you. The United States has the presidency of that organization, and where we are well armed and shall go forward to success. With the republican party in power, and President Roosevelt overwhelmingly seated, we expect great things to happen in the we expect great things to happen in the next four years."

International Council Greetings. Mrs. May Wright Sewall, past president of the International Council of Women, then presented the greetings of the International Council. "The International Council," she said, "is a different body from that which met five years ago in Washington. Then there were nine countries represented, while now there are nineteen. sar knew not so large an empire-indeed, the empire of womanhood encircles Rome itself. At that meeting we felt that the propaganda most essential to the welfare of mankind was peace and international arbitration. We outgrew this, and now stand for two other propositions. Miss Anthony had advocated that under a republic women should share in the government through the ballot, but we now hold that this should apply under all forms of governments. But governments are aggregations of individuals, and, therefore, everything depends upon character. There has been a separation of the sexes and the giving of the duty of labor to man and of spiritual to women. It has been held that men should to be that on a direct vote the national make for material success and that women should be chaste.

"The International Council of henceforth makes the proposition wherever organized it shall stand for an equal standard of personal chastity for men and women alike; that the white life shall be the object of both. We exact the same ideal for manhood as for woman-

The greetings of the Council of Women of Canada were presented by Mrs. Robert Thompson, its president. "All sorts of women join in our council for the common good," she said. "The outlook for the future was never brighter.' Mr. Edwin Markham's Address.

"The Man With the Hoe," or, more properly speaking, the author of that celebrated poem, which will be read by him at the meeting of the council tonight, Mr. Edwin Markham, was the next speaker, and that his profound indorsement of women in everything that they do for the uplifting and betterment of humanity is

"The woman movement of this century is its most significant movement, because it brings huthe meaning of the social conscience. Culture signifies that we belong together. every man there are two men-the brute and the God man. The fighting of the brute in him is the mighty miracle of the social conscience. Against the brute is growing up the divine, the social man, "The principle to guide humanity in its problems is the social conscience. It is to it that I attribute its progress. From the lowest to the highest strata of society we find the principle growing. In it we find the new heaven and the new earth. I see everywhere a great plow plowing through humanity. On one side of the furrow thus plowed are those who live for self-interest; on the other side are those who live for others. Religion, after all, is nothing but an appeal to men to live for the social welfare, and is expressed in all beliefs. Jesus simply proclaims its law when He announced that the greatest

It is the essence of all gospel and the ful-fillment of all relation. We want not the rule of gold, but the golden rule. "To carry this out in this world we need the help of women. Men have done all that they can do in government. I am a very ardent woman suffragist."

Afternoon Proceedings.

After The Star report closed the afternoon session of the council was greeted with a crowded house till late dinner time. Mrs. Mary Wood Swift made her annual address. Rev. Anna Howard Shaw spoke for the National Suffrage Association, Mrs. Elizabeth Grannis for the National Christian League for the promotion of social purity, and Rev. Amanda Devo on the Universal Peace Union, after which a spirited discus-Peace Union, after which a splyted discussion of the various subjects presented kept intellectual sparks flying for an hour.

Mrs. Swift said in the beginning that there was not very much to report since her coming into the presidency. In that time four new national organizations have joined the council and three local bodies, who stated. There have been not withdraw. she stated. There have been nd withdraw-als. We have labored under great difficulties during the last year, as I live 3,000 miles from most of the members of the organization, and very often I would have to wait several weeks for a reply from my secre-taries. I have not been able to raise money anyhow or anywhere. There are still 100 organizations out of the National Council that should be persuaded to come in. They must be shown how beneficial it will be for the country and themselves. Each member of this council ought to try and persuade these organizations to come in. "The only fault I have to find is that some of our members forget that there is a central body and work entirely for the local organizations. Unless they seel that they must each do something for the national organization it cannot exist. I recommend closer relations between the American and Canadian councils especially. We should work in harmony and meet together somewhere where we may all attend. California is out of the question. In this way we can consult with each other, advise and plan together. We are both Americans and University," she said. "She was the greatest woman in her work the United States ever produced. She gave $50,000,000 to found an institution that is one of the most magnificent in the country. It has the largest endowment of any in the world. "Mrs. Stanford was a personal friend of mine. When the suffragists became organized in California, some years ago, I went to her for assistance. She never turned any one away, and she nearly always helped. But she told me that she had pawned her jewels to run the university. 'It sounds strange,' she said, 'that I have no money, but it is tied up by litigation for taxes, and I am, therefore, compelled to borrow on my jewels. My professors are compelled to wait for their salaries. And so I have no money to give you.' But she aided us in many ways and was our friend. I believe that at the proper time suitable resolutions should be adopted expressing ur sorrow at her death.' Of her officers she said that had they not been very efficient she would have been forced to resign long ago.

"They have done all the work, of course, with my approval,' have never had a better treasurer. I feel that she is, although I am no auditor. I heartily thank the officers for the efficient way in which they have done their work.
"I hope that in selecting a president one will be selected not so widely separated from her secretaries, especially her corresponding secretary, who should be in the same town with the president, or who can reach her by 'phone.

Address by Rev. Anna Shaw. Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National Woman's Suffrage Association, then gave the council something to think about. "Some one has said that where freedom exists there is the center of power," she said. "The organization which I represent is one which has been seeking that power. Without power to keep what we have gained even the very best things are not secure. This organization was the first of this class and the one to call this body into being. We have applied to legislature after legislature for the power to vote and for equal rights for women as well as for men, but have met with many defeats. In New Hampshire, a conservative community, we were defeated by only two votes. This question has also been submitted in the large cities of the country. In Wheeling, W. Va., also a conservative same vote as in the state of New Hampshire. This shows a great increase in our power and influence. I think that 5,000,000 would be a low estimate for woman suffrage advocates in America. It is much more difficult to organize people to ad-vocate an abstract principle than a tangible one, as ours is; therefore we have been working with disadvantages. It is also difficult to organize against the corrupt political machines. The voters claim that hey are powerless against these politica rings, and their interference with the legis lators, who are persuaded to prevent meas ures from passing on the woman's suffrage question. If the men are powerless against these rings, are not the 'disfranchised wo-men' compelled to exert more energy in securing this power or justice?

"Never did our organization stand stronger than it does today. As soon as people come to know people better they like each other better. The anti-suffrage and the suffrage advocates are eager for the same thing-power-but the difference between them is that the anti-suffragists don't know it. Some think influence can be obtained in one way, the anti-suffragists by influence in the home and the suffragists by this and 'equal rights.' This is the only difference in the method of obtaining the object or result. Some think that the indirect method, by womanly influence, is the surest way, but influence plus the vote, which is the power behind the throne, can do more than simply the influence without the vote. The plus is an important part. "What the woman's suffrage organiza tion needs is more money and more women tion has increased 20 per cent during the last year. Many more organizations and bodies of men are seeing the necessity for woman suffrage. For the protection of the children and the home the women must have the power to vote, to make or un-make legislators."

Equality of Sexes.

Mrs. E. B. Grounis declared that a law to aid the carrying out of the seventh commandment is opposed by those who do not believe in the equality of womanhood with manhood, this in referring to the efforts to have such a law passed in New York. In speaking of the work of the organization she said: "A goodly number of meetings have been held and addresses given in different cities by our officers, state residents and guests known for effective labors."

Rev. Amanda Deyo, in making the report of the Universal Peace Union, told of its efforts to make May 18 an international peace day; of the efforts to add to the workers by adding the Woman's Christian workers by adding the Woman's Christian Association, the Epworth League and the Christian Endeavor societies; of the efforts in America to bring about universal peace and of the sending of an envoy to the far east to advocate peace negotiations. "War is the great curse of woman as well as of man," she said.

Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, president of the Massachusetts Equal Suffrage Association, spoke briefly for her organization on both suffrage and peace and arbitration. This tated a lively discussion which became general.

ford, founder of the Leland Stanford, Jr., about in a perfectly practical way to organize the world.'

Favors Immediate Action. "If we must change human nature to bring about peace, then let us begin imme diately," broke in Rev. Anna Shaw, at this juncture. "We must train our girls not to admire above all else brass buttons and stripes, and the boys must be trained to think first of killing something. Teach them both a love of peace, and not a love of fighting. When we teach them that not to fight is evidence of more courage than to fight, things will be different. Teach them to be kind to animals, and not to kill

"There never was a time when crimes and murders were so prevalent in this Christian land, which talks so much about governing other people when it can't gov-ern itself. To eradicate it we must teach our boys manliness, and not mannishness." Miss Mead went on to say that she would never let children sing the "Army and Navy

That brought Mrs. Fio Jamison Miller past national president of the Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, to her feet with a bang. "I belong to a fighting organization," she de-clared, with flashing eyes and reddening cheeks. "I believe in singing patriotic songs I believe in patriotism. I believe in peace and I believe in it if you have to fight for it," and then all those "peace" women applauded, laughed and applauded again. Then a smiling little women wearing a number of patriotic badges said, as she wiped the tears from her eyes, "What a entimental lot of impulsive

SCHOOLS CROWDED.

Petworth Citizens Want Additional Building-Other Business Considered. The members of the Petworth Citizens' Association adopted a resolution last night setting forth the need of additional school room for the children of that section. The resolution cited the crowded condition of the schools at present and the necessity for the relieving of these conditions. The meeting of the association was held at the home of President Gude. Secretary Partello presented the school resolution and made a short statement of the conditions. At present, he said, the various grades at Petworth school are compelled to hold half-day sessions in order to accommodate all the pupils. As a majority of the children attending school in the District leave school to earn their livelihood before reaching the high school, more attention should be paid to the graded schools and better facilities afforded the prospective pupils for obtaining an education. When the legislative appropriation is too small to properly sup-port both the high and graded schools, he said, the major consideration, it would seem, should be given to the lower grades. President Gude brought forward the question of mail service, which, he said, was secretary be instructed to communicate with Postmaster Merritt before action should be taken by the association on the subject. Mr. A. W. Oyster presented a resolution, which was unanimously adopted providing for District opposition. ed, providing for District ownership of street railways, gas and electric lighting plants. He presented a number of arguments in favor of his resolution. He then made a short address, protesting vigorously against the high assessments in the Dis-trict. He supplemented his address with a resolution in which he stated that assessments on property ranging in value from $1,000 to $10,000 have been from 25 to 50 per cent higher than on property ranging in value from $30,000 to $500,000 or more. It was further set forth that it is the sense of the association that assessors should assess all property without fear or favor.

The resolution was adopted. The meet-The resolution was adopted. The meeting was brought to a close with an address by Mr. Louis P. Shoemaker on the influence of citizens' associations on the government of the District.

25 YEARS OF AGONY ENDED

Boston Business Man Cured By Cuticura of Awful Humor Covering Head, Neck, and Shoulders After Hospital and Doctors Failed.

Under date of September 9, 1904, Mr. S. P. Keyes, a well-known business man of No. 149 Congress Street, Boston, Mass.,

five years I suffered agony from a terrible humour, completely covering my head, neck and shoulders, discharging matter of such offensiveness to sight and smell, that to my friends, and even to my wife, I became an object of dread. At large expense I consulted the most able doctors far and near. Their treatment was of no avail, nor was that of the --- hospital, during six months' efforts. I suffered on and concluded there was no help for me this side of the grave. Then I heard of some one who had been cured by Cuticura, and thought that a trial could do no harm. In a surprisingly short time I was completely cured.

CUTICURA-THE SET, $1. Complete Treatment for Every Humour from Pimples to Scrofula

Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle; dry, without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely, to allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal; and, lastly, take Cuticura Resolvent Pills to cool and cleanse the blood. A single set is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring skin, scalp, and blood humours, with loss of hair, when all else fails.
